

Global Finance Names the Second Annual FX Tech Awards for 2023 as Part of the Gordon W. Platt Foreign Exchange Awards

NEW YORK, November 18, 2022 — Global Finance magazine has named its second annual FX Tech Awards as part of the Gordon W. Platt Foreign Exchange Awards. This awards program honors companies that conceive fresh ideas and execute flawlessly in designing or deploying technology to improve foreign exchange.

These awards are named in honor of Gordon W. Platt, who was the driving force behind this program for many years.

An exclusive report on this program will be published in the January 2023 print and digital editions as well as online at GFMag.com. It will also include Global Finance's 23rd annual World's Best Foreign Exchange Banks Awards.

Winning organizations will be honored at an Awards Reception on February 22, 2023 at Glaziers Hall in London.

Global Finance's regional experts considered bank and technology provider submissions and used their own research and knowledge to make shortlists in all regions and categories, before applying a bespoke algorithm, which includes market share, scope of global coverage, innovative features, competitive pricing and customer service to help choose the 2023 FX Tech Award winners.

"Technology's continued rapid evolution keeps introducing innovations to the foreign exchange market," said Joseph Giarraputo, founder and editorial director of Global Finance. "The FX Tech Awards honors the best banks, fintechs, telecoms and media companies that have made the most significant contributions to the FX market and its operations."

The complete list of Global Finance's 2023 FX Tech Awards follows.
